Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade

Section 1: Entity overview and resources

1.1 Strategic direction statement

The purpose of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade (the department) is to make Australia stronger, safer and more prosperous, to provide timely and responsive consular and passport services, and to ensure a secure Australian Government presence overseas. The department does this by focusing on our region, where our interests are most at stake; investing not only in traditional but also in more diverse relationships; and upholding international rules that protect us all.

The department prioritises region, relationships and rules: focusing on the Indo-Pacific, building common ground with other countries, and encouraging the world to operate by agreed rules. In today's interconnected world, what we do abroad needs to reinforce—and be reinforced by—who we are and what we do at home.

As we seek to maintain peace in our region, our nation's front line is diplomacy. By combining all arms of our national power—including economic, strategic, diplomatic, development and military—as well as by working with our partners, we can advance our interests and values, and create a credible deterrent for any potential adversary. The department leads this work overseas on behalf of the Australian Government.

In our region, Australia is progressing Pacific partnerships in unprecedented ways, turbocharging our economic ties with Southeast Asia, and upgrading and diversifying key relationships. In the world, we are defending and upholding global rules, protecting Australian citizens, and promoting Australia's interests in peace, security and trade.

Region

We live in an interconnected world, but what matters most to Australia's future is our own region, the Indo-Pacific. The Indo-Pacific is where Australia faces our greatest opportunities and biggest risks. It is home to many of the largest growing economies in the world. Yet it has also seen a military build-up unprecedented at any time since World War Two, intense great power competition that risks spiralling into conflict, coercive behaviour, and the impacts of climate change.

Australia's interests are in a region that is peaceful, stable and prosperous — where no country dominates, and all countries have the freedom to decide their own futures, without interference. We want a region where we operate by the same rules, and where we have space to agree and to disagree. That requires all countries to contribute to a regional balance of power.

To achieve these interests, we must invest heavily in our engagement with the countries of our region. Our success in making ourselves a partner of choice will be decisive in seizing opportunities and navigating uncertainty. This is why so much of Australia's international effort is focused on building common ground and alignment in a wider range of regional relationships. We work together both to build reassurance of our peaceful intent, and also to create deterrence against the threat of conflict—through economic development, diplomacy and security cooperation.

In the Pacific, the department will focus on:

- working to ensure Australia remains a partner of choice, by building bilateral partnerships and working with our neighbours to build Pacific-led security responses, and implementing the historic Falepili Union treaty with Tuvalu and the Nauru-Australia Treaty; we will also grow our partnership with Papua New Guinea, including through our Bilateral Security Partnership
- boosting economic growth by supporting critical human development outcomes in health and education—along with other activities that underpin economic sustainability in the region including critical infrastructure, telecommunications cables, banking and aviation connectivity
- recognising that climate change is the Pacific's top concern and responding with practical support for climate resilience and adaptation, including through supporting Pacific-led initiatives like the Pacific Resilience Facility
- building the people-to-people links that underpin bilateral relationships through supporting labour mobility programs and migration options; we will coordinate work with partner governments to ensure migration is mutually beneficial and facilitates skills transfer
- deepening Australia's First Nations international engagement, led by the Ambassador for First Nations People; our engagement has enabled genuine dialogue on shared regional challenges, including how knowledge, culture and mutual understanding are a force for practical change, and is also opening new doors for First Nations businesses and organisations

In Southeast Asia, the department will prioritise:

- deepening engagement and fostering alignment with ASEAN and the countries of Southeast Asia, including by building on the formal upgrades of our diplomatic relationships with the Philippines, Brunei and Laos; we also continue to further our longstanding ties with Indonesia, Vietnam, Malaysia and Singapore, where our cooperation is underpinned by Comprehensive Strategic Partnerships
- increasing our trade and investment, development, security and defence ties with Indonesia, including through the Indonesia-Australia Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement and supporting ratification of our landmark Defence Cooperation Agreement

- championing ASEAN's central role in upholding the collective peace, security and prosperity of the region
- deepening our partnership with Timor-Leste to support long-term economic resilience and advance our shared interest in a peaceful, stable and prosperous region
- implementing Invested: Australia's Southeast Asia Economic Strategy to 2040, to help more Australian businesses seize the opportunities in one of the world's fastest growing regions
- expanding engagement with the region through the ASEAN-Australia Centre—a $33.1 million investment that will grow business, education, cultural and community connections between Australia, ASEAN member states and Timor-Leste; the Centre will also connect young entrepreneurs and emerging leaders, laying the groundwork for our shared future

Across our region, the department will focus on:

- continuing to rebuild Australia's development program in the Indo-Pacific, which is building partnerships to tackle some of the most entrenched challenges in our region like poverty, economic growth, health, infrastructure investment, climate change, food security, disability and gender equality; our approach is helping make Australia a partner of choice for the countries of our region, and ensuring our security and economic strength
- reforming the New Colombo Plan, ensuring the program supports Australia's strategic objectives to deepen engagement in our region and lift the capability of our people; these reforms include a greater emphasis on students learning languages and undertaking longer-term study experiences in the Indo-Pacific, augmenting our reputation for world-class international education
- upholding the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS) and preventing conflict and building strategic trust; this includes working closely with regional partners to uphold international law in the South China Sea
- strengthening the Quad partnership with India, Japan and the United States of America – three important Indo-Pacific countries – to promote regional peace, stability and development
- advancing a sustainable and secure Indian Ocean to build capacity to preserve and protect the maritime domain, including establishing a Marine and Coastal Resilience Hub under India's Indo-Pacific Oceans Initiative, hosting workshops to build capacity in the Indian Ocean region on UNCLOS, and expanding our diplomatic footprint in the region, opening posts in Bengaluru, Kolkata and Malé

Relationships

Because Australia is a medium-sized country, building alignment with partners gives us more weight in resisting shared threats—and multiplies our choices in solving shared problems. In these ways, partnering with others means we have more control even in the face of greater uncertainty.

We partner with other countries directly, in small groups like the Quad, and through organisations like the Pacific Islands Forum, ASEAN, the United Nations and the G20. Part of our focus is reinforcing our relationships with traditional partners, including with the United Kingdom, the United States of America, New Zealand and Canada. We have strengthened our ties with Europe, including with the European Union, and through the Australia-France Roadmap for Cooperation.

But as the world becomes more uncertain, we need even stronger relationships closer to home. Australia needs more diversified relationships: more partnerships that are important to our future, especially in our region — as outlined in the preceding pages.

Developing those relationships takes time and effort — including ongoing direct engagement with high-level visits and cooperation on issues of mutual concern, like climate change and economic development. We are seeing the results of our efforts in the Pacific and Southeast Asia — where our ties with nations such as Fiji and Indonesia are so critical to our national interests. And Australia's relationships with Japan, India and the Republic of Korea have never been closer.

The focus of the department will be on:

- advancing our relationship with the United States of America, which is our closest ally, principal strategic partner and largest two-way investment partner; the Australia-United States alliance is central to Australian and regional security, as is the network of US alliances in our region at the same time as we have invested in more diverse relationships in the region and the world, we have continued to build our longstanding and bipartisan alliance with the United States
- continuing to stabilise ties with China without compromising on our national interest; this has involved patient diplomacy and restoring ministerial level-dialogue between our two countries, including in education, climate change, economics and trade
- enhancing our cooperation with India, including by deepening our alignment on regional activities, supporting increased defence exercises and maritime domain awareness activities, and expanding our economic cooperation through the new Roadmap for economic engagement with India, the Australia-India Business Exchange and the Centre for Australia-India Relations

- coordinating the modernisation of our substantial trade, investment, defence and security links with Japan; as democracies and middle powers, we share perspectives on responding to challenges in our region
- developing our economic and strategic relationship with the Republic of Korea, which is a crucial partner in Australia's efforts to maintain a regional balance of power
- deepening our relationships in the North East Indian Ocean to contribute to the region's strategic balance is an immediate priority; we are protecting our sea lanes of communication, prioritising the resilience and autonomy of our partners and promoting economic security with a focus on Bangladesh, Maldives and Sri Lanka
- continuing to implement the AUKUS Security Partnership, which will lift the submarine industrial bases and undersea capabilities of Australia, the United States of America and the United Kingdom, promoting a stable Indo-Pacific and deterring potential threats to Australia and the region

Rules

Australia is better off in a world guided by the rules that are agreed between nations. These rules are the way we level the playing field for nations of all sizes. They are how we ensure that the world is not governed by might or size alone, and enable small and medium countries to have a say. This is how these rules shape the character of the region and world in our interests.

Nations like Australia rely on these rules, to address climate change, to promote human rights, to protect our marine and maritime interests, and to relegate nuclear, chemical and biological weapons to history. We need to work together with other countries to uphold and strengthen existing rules, and also to develop approaches on rules for newer global problems, including cyberattacks, interference, disinformation and economic coercion.

The department will strengthen rules and institutions by:

- protecting core treaties that underpin sovereignty and prosperity
- deterring and responding to malicious cyber actors, including through attributions, Australia's first ever cyber sanctions, and support to strengthen cyber resilience in the Pacific
- respecting the independence of the institutions that uphold international law, including the International Court of Justice and the International Criminal Court
- pursuing truth, justice and accountability for the victims of the downing of Flight MH17

- championing human rights, gender equality and social inclusion and holding countries and perpetrators to account for violating international human rights, including through Magnitsky-style sanctions
- bolstering the global non-proliferation and disarmament regime
- shaping global health reform, to ensure the international community is better equipped to prevent, prepare for, detect and respond rapidly to future public health emergencies
- affirming the role of the World Trade Organization in ensuring free and fair trade
- reiterating our support for the United Nations, where 193 nations come together, because many of our biggest problems require regional and global solutions; this includes seeking election to the UN Security Council for the term 2029–2030
- ratifying all ten International Labour Organization Fundamental Conventions, ensuring Australia upholds all fundamental international labour rights and is a fair, safe and secure place to work and do business

In addition to these efforts, the department will continue to play a key role in:

- supporting Ukraine's sovereignty in response to Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine in flagrant violation of the UN Charter; this includes $1.5 billion in Australian Government assistance to Ukraine since February 2022, and introduced over 1,400 targeted financial sanctions and travel bans against individuals and entities of strategic significance to Russia
- implementing targeted sanctions to respond to situations of international concern, including to deter and disrupt breaches of international law, egregious human rights abuses and other threats to our national interest; and we are strengthening coordination on sanctions with international partners
- working with international partners to advocate for regional peace and security in the Middle East, while addressing humanitarian needs, and pressing for adherence to international law

Australia has an abiding interest in participating in the regional and global architecture, assisting nations to preserve rules and norms and navigate turbulent times. We are members of a diverse range of organisations, including the G20, APEC, MIKTA, the OECD, the Commonwealth, the United Nations and the Commission on the Status of Women. As a founding member of both the G20 and APEC, Australia is working together to steer our citizens through a challenging global economy. We also prioritise regional architecture, as a member of the Pacific Islands Forum, the Indian Ocean Rim Association, the East Asia Summit and the ASEAN Regional Forum, and as the first Dialogue Partner of ASEAN.

The Australian Government will also continue to respond to humanitarian crises. Australia has an abiding commitment to helping others in crisis, which keeps our region secure and our people safe. Australia's new Humanitarian Policy outlines the role Australia will play at a time when need is outstripping the world's capacity to respond, and disregard for international law is increasing. We are investing further to support countries and communities in the Indo-Pacific region to be better prepared and able to respond to humanitarian disasters including the increasing impacts of climate change.

We are also providing additional assistance to help address the needs of the record number of people forcibly displaced from their homes, and over 300 million people in need of lifesaving assistance globally. This will build on the support provided to Bangladesh, Myanmar and communities affected by the Rohingya crisis since 2017, and the humanitarian assistance to support civilians impacted by conflicts in Gaza, Lebanon and the region since 7 October 2023.

In conflict zones, we cannot protect civilians unless we also protect the aid workers who provide lifesaving food, water and medicine. But each year, more and more aid workers are killed. Australia is working with a cross-regional group of countries to galvanise high-level global commitment through a new Declaration for the Protection of Humanitarian Personnel to better protect aid workers and strengthen compliance with international law. The declaration will encourage states to support practical measures to ensure aid workers have the information, communications and equipment they need to operate safely in conflict zones.

We will also continue to play our part in peacebuilding and security through development assistance, diplomatic efforts and multilateral engagement.

Supporting free and fair trade

As a trading nation, Australia benefits greatly from a stable and open global trading system that has underpinned security and prosperity for decades—including through the World Trade Organization. Australia led in building the two largest regional deals—the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP), and the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP). The department will continue to drive engagement through these, knowing that Australia's national interest lies in being at every table where economic integration in Asia is being progressed.

Australia has secured a new free trade agreement with the United Arab Emirates and our agreements with India and the UK have entered into force, which will deliver further benefits for Australians. The department will continue to focus on advancing Australia's trade relationships with the United States, and reinforce the Australia–United States Free Trade Agreement which entered into force 20 years ago. Australia will continue trade negotiations with India for a comprehensive economic cooperation agreement.

Advocating for human rights and gender equality

Australia deals with the world as it is and seeks to shape it for the better. Our support for human rights and values is central to who we are and to what Australia does in the world. We will continue to advance rights and protections globally and in our region, and our Anti-Slavery Commissioner will continue to strengthen Australia's efforts to end modern slavery.

We have appointed an Ambassador for Gender Equality and are implementing a new International Gender Equality Strategy, as well as a new International Disability Equity and Rights Strategy. We are ensuring Australia's development assistance has targets for gender equality and disability equity, so no-one is left behind. Australia has also joined Germany, Canada and the Netherlands to hold Afghanistan to account under international law for the Taliban's treatment of women and girls.

Reaching the world

Australia's diplomatic network spans 115 overseas posts and consulates in more than 90 countries around the world. This presence enables us to promote Australia's interests in peace, security, trade, investment and other areas of cooperation. The department will continue to deliver an overseas property estate that is effectively managed, safe and secure.

Australia's efforts in the world keep Australians more secure at home, but as the world becomes more uncertain and unstable, the Australian Government's support for Australians overseas is increasingly important. There are more than one million Australians overseas at any time, and the department leads and coordinates efforts to help Australians in trouble overseas. In 2023–24, the department managed over 15,200 cases of consular and crisis assistance and responded to 53,137 calls to the Consular Emergency Centre. The department can be supporting some 1,422 consular cases at any one time. The department will continue its focus on providing consular support to Australians in 2025–26.

Further information about the department's operating environment and key activities, and how it measures performance, is detailed in the department's Corporate Plan 2024–25.

1.2 Entity resource statement

Table 1.1 shows the total resourcing from all sources available to the entity for its operations and to deliver programs and services on behalf of the Government.

The table summarises how resources will be applied by outcome (government strategic policy objectives) and by administered (on behalf of the Government or the public) and departmental (for the entity's operations) classification.

For more detailed information on special accounts and special appropriations, please refer to the Budget Paper No. 4 – Agency Resourcing.

Information in this table is presented on a resourcing (that is, appropriations/cash available) basis, whilst the 'Budgeted expenses by Outcome ' tables in Section 2 and the financial statements in Section 3 are presented on an accrual basis. Amounts presented below are consistent with amounts presented in the Appropriation Bills themselves.

Section 2: Outcomes and planned performance

Government outcomes are the intended results, impacts or consequences of actions by the Government on the Australian community. Commonwealth programs are the primary vehicle by which government entities achieve the intended results of their outcome statements. Entities are required to identify the programs which contribute to government outcomes over the Budget and forward years.

Each outcome is described below together with its related programs. The following provides detailed information on expenses for each outcome and program, further broken down by funding source.

Note:

Performance reporting requirements in the Portfolio Budget Statements are part of the Commonwealth performance framework established by the Public Governance, Performance and Accountability Act 2013. It is anticipated that the performance measure described in Portfolio Budget Statements will be read with broader information provided in an entity's corporate plans and annual performance statements – included in Annual Reports – to provide a complete picture of an entity's planned and actual performance.

The most recent corporate plan for the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade can be found at: https://www.dfat.gov.au/about-us/publications/corporate/dfat-corporate-plan.

The most recent annual performance statement can be found at: https://www.dfat.gov.au/about-us/publications/corporate/annual-reports.

Section 3: Budgeted financial statements

Section 3 presents budgeted financial statements which provide a comprehensive snapshot of entity finances for the 2025–26 budget year, including the impact of budget measures and resourcing on financial statements.

3.1 Budgeted financial statements

3.1.1 Differences between entity resourcing and financial statements

There are no differences between the resource information presented in the Budget Papers and in DFAT's Portfolio Budget Statements.

3.1.2 Explanatory notes and analysis of budgeted financial statements

The total budgeted revenue from government in 2025–26 is $2,294.5 million as shown in Table 3.1. The increase is primarily attributable to:

- funding for new measures;
- parameter adjustments for overseas and domestic inflation; and
- foreign exchange movements.

The Income Statement shows a budgeted deficit in 2025–26 of $152.8 million before allowing for net cash funding arrangements.

In addition, all departmental financial statements have been updated to include the estimated impact of the accounting standards for leases (AASB 16).

Budgeted departmental balance sheet

The department will receive an equity injection of $142.1 million in 2025–26 for the purchase or construction of new assets. The department will also receive $117.4 million through its Departmental Capital Budget to fund the replacement of existing assets.

For 2025–26, the department's non-financial asset position is budgeted to be $5,601.2 million at year-end. The major asset component is $4,652.0 million for land and buildings.

Schedule of budgeted income and expenses administered on behalf of the government

Administered expenses for multilateral replenishments are budgeted at zero, a decrease of $988.1 million from the 2024–25 estimated actual due to no new multilateral replenishments being negotiated in 2025-26 compared to three being finalised in 2024-25.

Schedule of budgeted assets and liabilities administered on behalf of the Government

Administered assets and liabilities administered on behalf of the Government are budgeted at $3,667.1 million and $1,898.2 million respectively for the year ending 30 June 2026.

Schedule of budgeted administered cash flows

Administered cash receipts primarily comprise receipts from passport and consular services and are budgeted at $789.3 million, a decrease of $118.0 million.

Administered cash used in 2025–26 is estimated to decrease by $200.2 million compared to 2024–25. This is due primarily to the profile of the measures and other variations across the forward estimates.

a) From 2010–11, the Government introduced net cash appropriation arrangements that provided non-corporate Commonwealth entities with a separate Departmental Capital Budget (DCB) under Appropriation Bill (No. 1) and Supply Bill (No. 1). This replaced revenue appropriations provided under Appropriation Bill (No. 1) used for the depreciation/amortisation expenses. For information regarding DCBs, please refer to Table 3.5 Departmental Capital Budget Statement.

b) Applies leases under AASB 16 Leases.
